

Penn Station Needs An Independent Review of Plans to Increase Capacity

Everyone wants an improved Penn Station and better service for riders.

Amtrak says we need a new underground station for New Jersey Transit. Building that would likely require demolishing the block south of Penn filled with affordable homes, local businesses, and landmark quality buildings.

Proponents of through-running say it could increase capacity within Penn without demolishing anything, and improve service throughout the region. Through-running would allow all trains coming into Penn to continue on to other destinations.

Billions of taxpayer dollars are at stake. Who's right? The public deserves an answer.

An independent peer review panel could answer the question.
